Subject: Microsoft settlement

We feel that business has the right to research, develop, promote and sell new ideas and products. That's what the American way is all about - freedom, now more than ever. We encourage the government to end the litigation process against Microsoft and carry out the settlement that has been reached. It will eventually be best for consumers - prices will be kept down and new products will be available more readily if the costs of litigation, etc, are kept to a minimum and the company can spend resources on research and development and getting products to market.
